Northwest Plumbing, Heating & AC Announces Expanded Winter Repair Services for Quad Cities Residents

January 29, 2026

DAVENPORT, Iowa - January 29, 2026 -
Northwest Plumbing, Heating & AC has announced expanded service capacity for furnace repair and installation services throughout the Quad Cities region as temperatures continue to drop across Iowa. The company, which has served the area since 1923, has increased its technical workforce and extended service hours to meet rising demand for heating system maintenance and emergency repairs.

The expansion comes as many homeowners face aging heating systems that require immediate attention during the coldest months of the year. Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC has modernized its appointment booking system to provide customers with more efficient service scheduling and improved communication about service windows and technician arrival times.

"With nearly a century of experience serving the Quad Cities, we understand how critical reliable heating is during Iowa winters," said Bill Durand, spokesperson for the company. "Our expanded service capacity ensures that families won't have to wait when their heating systems need attention, whether it's routine maintenance or an emergency repair situation."

The company's technicians have experience with all types of heating systems, including high-efficiency furnaces, geothermal units, traditional boilers, and ductless mini-split systems. Recent investments in advanced diagnostic equipment help identify potential issues before they develop into costly emergencies, saving homeowners from unexpected breakdowns during severe weather.

Beyond heating services, the company maintains year-round plumbing capabilities, addressing everything from water heater installations to drain cleaning and sump pump repairs. This comprehensive approach allows residents to rely on a single provider for multiple home service needs.

The company has also introduced Service Partner Agreements, which include scheduled maintenance visits, priority service scheduling, and waived after-hours fees. These preventative maintenance plans start at $99 annually for heating systems and help extend equipment life while reducing the likelihood of unexpected failures.

"Preventative maintenance remains the most effective way to avoid heating emergencies," added Durand. "Regular system checks identify worn components before they fail, which is especially important for systems that are ten years or older."

To make system replacements and major repairs more accessible, financing options are available through GreenSky for qualified customers. The company also offers monthly specials to help offset the cost of new equipment installations.

The recent service expansion represents the latest development in the company's ongoing commitment to the Quad Cities community. As this news article demonstrates, local businesses continue adapting to meet changing customer needs.

Northwest Plumbing, Heating & AC provides residential plumbing, heating, and air conditioning services throughout the Quad Cities area. Founded in 1923, the company employs experienced technicians who specialize in installation, repair, and maintenance of home comfort systems. The company offers 24-hour emergency service and free estimates for system replacements.

Updates about service offerings and seasonal promotions are regularly shared on the company's Twitter account and other digital platforms.
